About the Recycled Plastic Products Source Book

The American Plastics Council (APC) is pleased to present this Source Book to help private and public sector buyers identify products made with recycled plastic. The information provided herein was gathered through an exhaustive survey effort and is accurate to the best of our knowledge. Completed surveys, signed by the manufacturer, are on file. The APC has made no effort to investigate the performance of products listed or the financial status of the manufacturers listed.

The white pages list products available made with recycled plastic, including manufacturer name and post-consumer and/or recovered material content information.* Additional information is provided if made available to us by the manufacturer. The gray pages list manufacturer addresses and contact persons.

A copy of the product listing survey form appears at the end of this book. (Please make it available to any manufacturer you feel should be listed in this document and is not.) All information provided to APC is entered in our Recycled Plastic Products Database, enabling us to produce customized listings as needed. For example, you may request a listing of all products made with recycled HDPE by calling 1-800-2-HELP-90.

Because the Source Book is linked to the Database, it is constantly growing and evolving as APC receives additional information. The printing date for this edition is located at the bottom of each product listing page. To order updated editions, call 1-800-2-HELP-90.

 APC Adheres to the ASTM Definition of Recycled Plastic:

Those plastics composed of post-consumer material or recovered material only, or both, that may or may not have been subjected to additional processing steps of the types used to make products such as recycled regrind, or reprocessed or reconstituted plastics. Note that industrial scrap, including what is commonly referred to as trim or regrind in plastics production, is not considered recycled material.

Post-consumer material — Those products generated by a business or consumer that have served their intended end uses and that have been separated or diverted from solid waste for the purposes of collection, recycling and disposition.

Recovered material — Materials and by-products that have been recovered from solid waste, but not including those materials and by-products generated from and commonly reused within an original manufacturing process (industrial scrap).

The Recycled Plastic Products Source Book is printed on recycled paper.

 APC Adheres to the ASTM Definition of Recycled Plastic:
Those plastics composed of post-consumer material or recovered material only, or both, that may or may not have been subjected to additional processing steps of the types used to make products such as recycled regrind, or reprocessed or reconstituted plastics. Note that industrial scrap, including what is commonly referred to as trim or regrind in plastics production, is not considered recycled material.

Special note regarding products available at retail/mail order outlets:

The American Plastics Council publishes a special consumer's guide to products made with or packaged in recycled plastic. For a product to be eligible for inclusion in this guide, titled Shop Recycled!, a consumer must be able to purchase a single unit of the product at a retail outlet or order a single unit from a manufacturer or distributor's catalog. If your product satisfies this requirement, please check the box at right.

Yes, please list this product in Shop Recycled!
